our history," said Delano. "As agricultural producers, citizens and taxpayers we will meet to take policy positions on agricultural, economic and social issues."

The primary purpose of this convention will be to consider resolutions forwarded to the meeting from the 85 individual county Farm Bureaus in Virginia.

The convention will open Tuesday evening with Vesper services.

Dr. Sidney E. Sandridge, president of Southern Seminary, will be the speaker.

President Delano will make his annual report on Wednesday morning. Other speakers that morning will be Michael Altizer, president of Russell County Farm Bureau, and Roger Fleming.

Wednesday afternoon there will be an election of VFBF officers and members of the board of directors.

Consideration of resolutions will begin Wednesday afternoon.

Facing the voting delegates will be national and state agricultural issues, proposed changes in the Virginia Constitution and other state issues, and proposed changes in Farm Bureau by-laws.

The process for Farm Bureau resolutions is that they start at the county Farm Bureau and are sent to the VFBF Resolutions Committee.

This Committee met last at Natural Bridge, and the Committee report will be made at the convention. Resolutions adopted at the Roanoke convention become Virginia Farm Bureau policy and determine the position the farm organization will take on issues as they come before the 1970 General Assembly.

Resolutions on national issues will be forwarded to the American Farm Bureau convention to be held in Washington, D. C. Dec. 7-11.

One of the highlights of the convention will be the announcement of the recipient of the Virginia Farm Bureau Distinguished Service Award. This is the most coveted award the organization can offer. It has been presented only three times in the history of Farm Bureau.

President Delano has announced that this award will be made this year. No announcement will be made until the presentation on Thursday night.

The Pastor Speaks

"God Keeps On Working"

Many people talk about salvation as if it were something that's all finished when a person comes to know Jesus Christ personally. Actually it's only beginning at that time. Salvation is a relationship in which a person comes to know Jesus Christ in such a way as to have his life changed. The initial meeting with Christ happens in a moment. The process of change takes a whole lifetime.

Paul tells us in Philippians 1:6, and I paraphrase, "I am confident of this very thing, that the one who has started a good work in you will keep on performing it until Christ comes again." Paul is saying that the same God who brings us to know Jesus Christ keeps on working in us to round off the corners and polish up the interior of our lives.

God doesn't look at the newborn Christian and say, "You are on your own now. You can make it by yourself." Instead he looks inwardly and says, "You are still a very needy person. I am going to work in you with my strength to make you what you ought to be." So God goes to work. He deals with temper, tongue, and tiredness. He deals with pride, purity, and personality. He deals with laziness, lovelessness, and laxity. Salvation merely bring a man to know God's interest in such a way as to be changed.

If you've come to know Christ personally, know that the same God who brought you to know Christ is working in you now to change you. Your responsibility is to let the God who created the universe re-create you to be more like his son, Jesus Christ.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

NO ENDING

Lesson for November 23, 1969

Background Scripture: Ezra 1; 3; 6; Nehemiah 2:11-20; 4; 6:15, 16.
Devotional Reading: Ezra 9:6-9.

How often do we at last reach the end of something, only to find it is just the beginning of something else?

The long-awaited graduation day arrives and we leave high school behind and find ourselves confronted with college, our first job, or the armed forces.

Finally, our wedding day comes and we put the single life behind us, only to find that the new life also has its problems, concerns, and obstacles.

The day of parenthood is experienced at last and a whole new life of responsibility enfolds before us.

Mingled With the Joy

So it is with most of those eagerly-awaited events that seem to promise the end of something we are anxious to put behind us. It comes as a day of celebration, but with the joy there is mingled the challenge of some new course to run.

I remember so vividly the wild celebration on V-J Day, the day when Japan surrendered and ended World War Two. How we had longed for and looked forward to that day when the terrible conflict would be over. It would mean that war itself would be obsolete. (It did not!) It would mean that fathers, husbands, brothers, and friends would be coming home to stay. (They did not stay!) It would signal the reality of a one-world community. (It was not for long!) It would bring the end of rationing and shortages. We would once more enjoy the luxury of wasting things and be released from the obligation of bending every effort and resource to "the cause."

Time for Fulfillment

So the day came and the world rejoiced . . . for at least a day and perhaps a week or two. Then we settled down once more to living in a still imperfect world and fastened our eyes on some new Utopia just over the ever-receding horizon.

It was like this with the exiled Jews. During the long captivity in Babylonia, the people are kept going with prophetic promises of eventual liberation and return to their beloved homeland. Now at last, with the rise of Cyrus and the demise of the Babylonians, that day had come. The prophecies are about to be fulfilled!

The writer of Isaiah 45 had hailed the coming of Cyrus and called him "God's annointed." For Cyrus was quite different from other conquerors. Wherever he spread his empire, unlike the Babylonians and Assyrians, he sought to allow displaced peoples to return to their native lands, thus establishing outposts in his empire that would remain friendly to him. Furthermore, he encouraged most of these displaced persons to reestablish their former places of worship. In some cases, he even gave financial assistance to this end. He was a far more skillful ruler than his predecessors.

A New Day

Yet, there was more to it than this, for Ezra says: ". . . the Lord stirred up the spirit of Cyrus. Thus, the enlightened approach of Cyrus was due also to the purpose of God at work within him. God stirred up the spirit Cyrus responded with an approach that was to make a better world and give a special blessing to the Jews.

So, Cyrus made his great proclamation and the great day finally arrived. The people of God in exile could now return to their homeland. When the first Jews landed Jerusalem, however, they found the city much as they had left it: a shambles to which had been added the weeds, stagnation, and dust of the intervening years.

The task, then, which had ended, The day of rebuilding was at hand, The exile had been a trial of patience and loyalty. The reconstruction era would be a challenge to their ability to prevail over new obstacles. The return was no ending, but a new beginning.

Sermon Topic –"Conditional Prophecy
Scripture Verse: "O' the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are His judgements and His ways past finding out." Romans 11:33.

Study Aim: To ascertain the conditions upon which the promises and threatenings of the Scriptures are based.

Lesson Outline and basic principles of the question answers as found in the Bible. May we be diligent students and study tests ourselves as written outhere.

I. The Future Unfolded. Q1. Immutability of God's purposes. Prov. 19:21. Q2. The shape of things to come, Isa. 46:9,10. Q3. Cyrus the deliverer. Isa. 44:24-28, 45:1-3, Q4. The divine human struggle. Ezn. 10:1, 5-7, 13:18-21. Q5. God's Word confirmed. Isa. 44:24, 25,26(first part) II. Predicted Benefits conditional on Obedience. Q6. Changed fulfillment resulting from disobedience. Jer. 18:9,10. Q7. changed fulfillment resulting from obedience. Jer. 18:7, 8. Illustrations of Threatenings Unfulfilled. Q8. The prophecy of Jonah. 3:1-4 Q9. No stated prospects of mercy, Johnah 3:4(last part) Q.10 A revelation of God's character Jonah 4:1,2. Q11. Reversal of a divine pronouncement. 2 Kings. 20:1-6. Q12. A promise postponed. Ex. 6:2-8, Num. 14:26-34, 35 A nation laid aside. Dan. 5:1-6, 25-28, 30,31.

Lesson Summary –

"God's Word is sure (Isa. 40: 8, 55:11, Rom. 11:29) With Him there is 'no variableness, neith- er shadow of turning' Ja. 46:10. His plan for the Salvation of man will ultimately prevail. "He is the same yesterday, and today and forever, Heb. 13:8. Read James 1:17. His word "regareth for ever" (1 Peter 1:25) Eventually God's purpose will prevail, and the plan of salvation will succeed irrespective of the failure of any person or group (Prophets and Kings 705, 706). The plan itself never changes. But the manner in which it is carried out may change because man may change. The fickle human will is weak, unstable factor in conditional prophecy." S.D.A. Bible Commentary. Vol. 4, P. 34. "It should be remembered that the promises and threatenings of God are alike conditional" –Selected Messages, Bk. 1, p. 67. "God may reject one nation or group of people in favor of another if those first summond persistently refuse to cooperate with Him," Some may lose their way in a time of great testing soon to come, but those who remain faithful will triumph with the church and be among the redeemed.

Eye Bank Holds Workshop

Old Dominion Eye Bank of Richmond was host recently to 185 members of Lions Clubs and their wives for an all-day workshop program.

The event was designed to familiarize Lions Club eye bank committee chairmen from all over eastern Virginia with the eye - donor program which the organization conducts. The various aspects of the eye bank's function were explained by three ophthalmologists who serve voluntarily on the eye bank's staff and by prominent Lions Club members who contributed their time and efforts to this project during the year.

The program was arranged by R. Kenneth Rudgins, Executive Director of the eye bank, and the seminar was conducted by Dr. Walter Mayer, the eye bank's Board Chairman.

Lions members who attended the workshop program will return to their communities to conduct local drivers in which eye - donation pledges will be solicited from the general public. It was pointed out at the meeting that the eye bank must double the 27,000 donor cards now on file in order to answer the increasing need for eye tissue used in sight-restoring transplant operations. To meet this need, each of the 2500 Lions Club members in the area have been asked to sign up a minimum of one eye donor each month.

Practice Begins Early

Just one year old, David Mason (closest to camera) believes in piano practice at a tender age, particularly when Gerald Ryan, 11 months old, can play the bass parts to his hearty treble! David is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Mason, of Farmville. Gerald, living with his mother, Mrs. James Ryan, in Pamplin, is waiting to show Daddy (Sgt. Ryan now in Germany) just what an expert he has become since the Sergeant went overseas. So what if there isn't any music spread out on the tall upright? Music by ear and fist is something special for these two charmers and their many friends and relatives.

Beta Club Reviews Songs

The Beta Club met on November 6, 1969, in the high school auditorium. Paul Harvey, president, called the meeting to order. The secretary, Wanda Hillsman, read the minutes and called the roll. Milton Bruce gave the treasurer's report. The president recognized the members of the Float Committee.

In the order of new business, it was decided that the Beta Club would buy a half a page ad in the school annual. Also, there was some discussion on money-making projects, but no decision was reached.

Martha Moon presented a panel discussion on the meaning of some popular songs. The panel consisted of Becky Harris, Karen Smith, Betsy Jones, and David Schrock. The panel listened to these songs and then gave their opinion of what was being sung.

The meeting was then adjourned.
